

aries. Moreover, transgressions are primarily defined by the nature of partners' expectations that they attach to their romantic relationships. As studies have demonstrated, individuals mostly anticipate a continuous display of emotional closeness by their romantic partners (e.g., fidelity, consideration, & affection). The most disastrous ramifications upon romantic relationships as a result of enacted transgressions are inflicted by infidelity, jealousy, and deception. Regardless of men's occasional stagger from morality, the present research study clearly displays their existing emotional capacity for a committed romantic relationship. As adverted hereinbefore, human beings are self-driven to seek and establish meaningful relationships. The fundamental need to belong as well as be accepted and appreciated is not defined by gender, race or other social group memberships. Honest two-way communication appears to be the key for auspicious coexistence.
